		In this course, we revisit the legacy of the New Deal to explore the impasse facing climate politics today. After reviewing the basic contours of the climate crisis, we mine the history of the New Deal for insights into how the American political system has historically navigated the transformation of energy systems, industrial and social policy, social movements, and geopolitics in response to crisis. We then ask what these historical lessons tell us about the challenges of transforming energy use today: whether and how industrial policy supporting renewables can compete with fossil energy; what economic and social policies can hold together a green political coalition; the

Multi-Designated Courses
There are limited number of instances in the Schedule of Courses in which classes fall into two unique categories: (1) Within Subject -- classes with multi-level course designations (eg. ANTH 323/423) and (2) Cross Subject - classes which have multiple designations but the same course content (eg. ARCH 351/ENV 351). These classes are viewed by the Colleges as "class equivalents" and students are only permitted to take one of the equivalents for credit toward their degree. Students should also be aware that for the within subject classes in category (1) there will be students that are taking the course at different levels and this will include differences in assignments, etc.
